

Financial Support: Can a grant-giving charity help your client?

How can charities help?

They can give financial support in a huge range of circumstances, such as:

- Help with daily essentials
- Paying bills
- Purchasing white goods and furniture.
- Disability equipment and home adaptations
- Childcare support
- School essentials
- Respite breaks
- Funeral costs

And much more!

Many also provide wellbeing and mental health services.

Just ask...

What jobs have they had?

There are hundreds of charities that help people, and their families, who have ever worked in a certain occupation or are in training.

Where do they live?

There are many regional charities helping people living in a certain area.

Any illness or disability?

There are charities supporting those with a certain illness or disability.

Who are they?

Women, children, older people and more all have charities out there to support them.

Did you know...

There are hundreds of occupational charities supporting people who have worked in a wide range of industries.

Retail workers, supermarket staff, nurses, carers, hospitality and construction workers and many more all have their own charities.
